INTERIORS

While the interior design world has been a hotbed of innovation and creativity, it's also been a time of great challenge. The industry has seen a significant shift in the way we live and work, with a growing emphasis on sustainability, wellness, and digital integration. This has led to a re-evaluation of the role of the interior designer, from a purely aesthetic role to one that encompasses a holistic approach to living and working environments.

The interior design industry is a complex and multifaceted one, with a wide range of professionals and disciplines involved. From architects and interior designers to furniture makers and lighting designers, the industry is a true collaborative effort. This is reflected in the way we live and work, with a growing emphasis on creating spaces that are not only beautiful but also functional and sustainable.

The interior design industry is a dynamic and ever-evolving one, with a wide range of opportunities for growth and innovation. As we continue to embrace the challenges of the future, the industry will undoubtedly continue to thrive and evolve, creating spaces that are truly transformative.

Rooted in Heritage

Minimalist yet rich in heritage, Maana is a carefully curated collection of three 100-year-old machiyas – Kyoto, Kamo and Kiyomizu – offering an authentic experience of traditional Japan in the tranquil southern neighbourhoods of Kyoto. Conceived by childhood friends Hana Tsukamoto and Irene Chang, the idea for Maana emerged from their shared longing to create spaces that would connect travellers to the cultural essence of a place.
